

Should inline-filters be used in peripheral intravenous catheters to prevent infusion-related phlebitis? – a systematic review of randomised controlled trials

Niël-Weise BS, Stijnen T, van den Broek PJ.

The following question was answered by a systematic review of the literature:
Should inline-filters be used in peripheral intravenous catheters to prevent infusion-related phlebitis?

This review is submitted for publication in a medical journal.
Contact for more information: b.s.niel-weise@lumc.nl